Explanations

The TRACA (Trustworthy Agentic AI-powered Communications for Autonomous Robotics Applications) project, in which the Company is a consortium partner, has been awarded the Full Label by CELTIC-NEXT, the ICT cluster of the intergovernmental R&D network EUREKA. The Full Label is an internationally recognised quality designation granted to projects that pass an independent assessment by panels of international experts covering technological innovation, commercialisation potential and the competence of the project consortium.

The TRACA project aims to develop AI-powered communication technologies and the platform infrastructure required to enable the interoperability of technology components for autonomous robotics applications. The project will be implemented by an international consortium comprising 17 organisations and companies from Spain, Türkiye, Sweden, Poland and Austria, under the coordination of Spain. Within the scope of the project, the Company will be responsible for system analysis, software development, the development of AI-based solution components, system integration and validation activities.
